City Council Studies Proposals for C-M Zoning on Tract Near Greenway Center

by Elaine Skolnik

The Greenbelt City Council has held several work sessions recently dealing with rezoning petitions for 46 acres of land to the south and adjacent to the Greenway Shopping Center, now under construction. Since the property is not located within the corporate limits of Greenbelt, council can only comment on the petitions rather than make recommendations, which carry more weight.

Western Development Corporation, contract purchasers and developers of Greenway, is seeking C-M (commercial miscellaneous) zoning for all three tracts. Possible development proposals include a motel/hotel and twin office buildings.

The Baltimore based Martins, Inc., chain of budget-priced catering business has already announced its intention to purchase 8 acres for a 50,000 sq. ft. facility. The purchase is contingent on the granting of the rezoning requests and appropriate alcoholic beverage license.

The 1970 Master Plan for College Park-Greenbelt and vicinity shows R-10 (multiple family/high density residential/high rise) for 45 acres and R-R (rural residential) for about 1 acre. In order to obtain rezoning contrary to the Master Plan. The applicant must show an error in the original plan or prove that changes in the area had not been taken into consideration at the time the original plan was adopted.

Western representatives believe that with the development of Greenway and the "Maryland Trade Center" on the adjacent property, the development of the three tracts with a mixture of "office, retail and commercial uses (including a hotel/motel complex) will not impair the integrity of Master Plan." Instead they contend that the development will be in keeping with the Master Plan commercial and employment guidelines.

Western also points out that "with the construction of a portion of Hanover Parkway and Greenway Center Drive as well as road improvements which would be required should this property develop, there will be no adverse impact upon traffic in the area."

The three properties are in sewer systems area 3—sewage available in one to two years.

C-M Zoning

The zoning ordinance describes C-M zoning as providing "locations for miscellaneous commercial uses which may be disruptive to the harmonious development, compactness and homogeneity of retail shopping centers. Where possible, land classified in this zone should be located on nonresidential roads, and the concentrations should be relatively far apart."

City Manager James K. Giese, in his comments to council on January 21, noted that the city in the past opposed dense zoning (R-10) for the property. "While the C-M zone changes the nature of the use, it is still an intense use," he pointed out. Permitted in the C-M zone are building supply and furniture stores, offices, auto and truck sales, service and storage facilities, banks and other financial institutions.

Giese suggested that council determine (1) whether its original position of low density for the property is still valid in view of the Greenway development and the rather dense apartment development to the south, (2) whether the C-M zone is the appropriate high density zone if such development should be considered, and (3) whether the road system is adequate for C-M zoning.

The city's Advisory Planning Board has recommended approval of the C-M zoning with conditions limiting heights of buildings, restricting the use of the zone for automobile establishments and establishing a ceiling on the amount of development permitted until there is an adequate adjacent roadway system.

Christacos - City Discuss Plans For Theater in Amicable Meeting

by Leta Mach

Greenbelt Cultural Arts Center, Inc. (GCACI) members and interested citizens applauded Center Mall owner George Christacos near the conclusion of a city council work session February 12. Christacos had agreed to allow GCACI a $500 month to month lease until June 1 after which GCACI could decide whether to take a year's lease for $1,000 a month.

At the beginning of the evening Mayor Gil Weidenfeld explained that the city had requested the meeting to learn Christacos' plans for the Center shopping area. He also explained that GCACI was anxious to have the theater. The city, he said, was willing to help GCACI find grants. Cable TV companies, asked about the possible shared use of the theater, have expressed interest and will send people to look at the building, he added.

Weidenfeld wondered whether renting the theater lobby would limit the potential use of the theater. The credit union has asked about renting that space, Christacos noted. Weidenfeld and Councilman Richard Castaldi asked about other possible future vacancies in the Center such as the post office and Twin Pines. They felt there might be other places in the Center where the credit union could locate.

"I'm hurting," replied Christacos, explaining that he couldn't pay the bills. Although he said the theater lobby might not be the best place for the credit union, Christacos added "I can't afford to lose them." He felt the Twin Pines location would be nice for the credit union. However, he explained, that although Twin Pines told him it was ready to build a new building in front of the shoe repair shop it has not yet started. Further, Christacos said "Suburban Trust has first refusal for that area."

As far as his plans for the theater Christacos talked of a mini-mall of shops or offices with entrances to the mall from the side street opposite Co-op and the real estate office. Christacos said he was planning capital investments for the renovation. If a cable TV company would want the theater, it would need a 15 year lease (the length of the franchise). It would take a month or more to determine whether a cable TV company wanted the building, yet their chance to use the building would be lost if the lobby were rented, Weidenfeld felt.

"I'd love to see the theater stay there," said Christacos as he offered the theater for $1,000 a month as is. Soon after he offered to include heat. GCACI would be responsible for electricity and water. "I think you're being very reasonable," said Castaldi.

Councilman Thomas White felt GCACI would have to provide some of the rent if it is to be "viable." He suggested grants should be pursued, along with the "musical chairs in the Center."

Christacos felt the lease agreement should not wait until June. However, Castaldi explained that GCACI would need time to determine costs and the city would not have its new budget until June in the event the city wanted to contribute to GCACI. Christacos then agreed to wait until June. In the meantime GCACI will have time to check costs, grants and possible cable TV shared use.

The city plans to meet with the credit union on February 26,

Advisory Busing Committee Closes Doors to Public, Press

by Hally Ahearn

The Citizens Advisory Committee on Busing has closed its doors to the public — and the press — while in the final throes of birthing a plan to maintain racial balances but reduce busing in county elementary schools. Public attendance at the meetings has been practically nil and press coverage slight, causing one member of the committee to speculate that the closed-door action may be, in part, a way for the committee to draw attention to the difficult work it is undertaking.

The committee is angered by the school board's refusal to grant an additional study by pupil accounting staff on busing patterns. At their January 28 meeting, representatives on the committee from the northern, southern and central school districts divided into working groups to come up with recommendations for reducing busing within these areas. Using projections already provided by the school board's pupil accounting staff giving racial percentages in the elementary schools if these schools served only their surrounding neighborhoods, the working groups hoped to come up with district busing plans which would give the elementary schools black enrollments of 30 to 70 percent, with busing times not to exceed 30 minutes, and would provide for the closing of any schools deemed underutilized and outside the 30 to 70 percent guidelines.

It was the 30-to-70 and school-closing parameters attached to the committee's request for a projected busing pattern study to which some school board members objected.

As a result of being denied the additional information, committee member James Garrett and one other committee member resigned in protest. The data requested would have given the committee a statistical picture of those schools that could meet the percentage and busing-time guidelines by drawing neighborhood pupils. Those schools that fell outside the parameters would stand out as problematic, and if underutilized would be recommended for closing by the committee.

The school board acted last fall to halt any further use of citizen task forces to help decide which schools in the county should be closed. But school board member Leslie Kreimer of Greenbelt told the News Review, "All we would have been giving them is data." The committee's charge is limited to making a recommendation to the school board, which the school board is not obligated to adopt. Kreimer added, "We have given the committee a rather extensive and difficult task and they have been working in good faith. Then we suddenly put a very significant roadblock in front of them." Kreimer, like other school board members, is reluctant to face the issue of school closings, but, "We are going to have to face it," she said.

Committee member Kathy Gough, also of Greenbelt, is concerned that the committee has not been operating under the advice of an attorney all along, so that members could be made aware of precedents in desegregation cases. Now the committee's move to close its doors is being challenged by the ACLU under the "Sunshine Law," which provides that meetings of public bodies with public business be to see what their needs and concerns are.

open to the public. Members of the committee are refusing to talk to the press about what transpired at their latest meeting on February 18.

CHURCH BOARD DRIVE SET FOR NEW CHAPEL

The Mowatt Memorial United Methodist Church will conduct a bond sales program during the week of February 24-29 in order to raise $150,000.00 to finance the construction of a new chapel. The program will be directed by Floyd Yarborough of American Security Church Finance, Inc., who will kick off the program by delivering the morning message at the 11 a.m. worship service on February 24. On Monday, February 25, there will be a pot luck dinner at the church, followed by a rally to organize the sale. Throughout the remainder of the week, the membership will offer the general community the opportunity to invest in the bonds.

The church will be offering revenue bonds paying 10% interest (compounded semi-annually) on denominations of $250, $500, and $1000. Bonds will mature at 6 month intervals over a 15 year period. By selling these bonds, the church will avoid the excessively high interest rates associated with a bank loan while returning an attractive yield to the small investor. The profits will be retained in the community.

The Methodist Church in Greenbelt was founded on August 2, 1945. Through the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Mowatt, the group was able to purchase a temporary building until a permanent church could be built. The church was subsequently named after Lieutenant Frank G. Mowatt, a much decorated fighter pilot who was killed over Germany in World War II. The present church structure was built in 1955, and will serve as the Sunday School when the new chapel is constructed.

Block Grants Improvement Projects Jeopardized by Inflation and TRIM

by Mary Lou Williamson

Sixth year funding through Community Development Block Grants for three city public improvement projects and two Greenbelt Homes, Inc., rehabilitation financing programs is threatened by inflation and TRIM.

The city's requests for sixth year funding total $322,000: reconstruction and widening of Ridge Road from Eastway to Southway, $275,000; playground improvements, $26,000; and administrative costs for a loan specialist, $21,000. Last year, in the preliminary Neighborhood Improvement Plan, Prince Georges County committed $271,000 in sixth year funding for these three projects. But because of inflation, the city requested additional funds above that commitment.

GHI expects to obtain $389,000 to be used for the rehabilitation program—probably for Section 8 housing assistance payments and the loan deferral program.

The county is involved because, although CDBG funds originate from the Department of Housing and Urban Development through the Neighborhood Strategies Area program, amounts set for specific projects are designated by the Prince Georges County Council.

The Greenbelt Homes, Inc., area of the city was selected in 1978 as a target neighborhood for improvement under NSA. The selection means a five-year commitment of funds estimated at three-quarters of a million dollars to GHI for rehabilitation of its homes and to the city for complementary improvement of public facilities.

County Review

The county's public works department, in reviewing the city's request, has now estimated the Ridge Road improvements alone to cost $450,000. Because the city has not yet done any road work under CDBG rules, City Manager James K. Giese told the News Review he is hesitant to gauge the accuracy of his estimate of $275,000. He speculates, though, that the much higher county figure is based on higher county standards which the city does not feel are necessary. The county then recommended instead that the city just resurface the road, estimating the cost at $100,000.

At the same time, the county staff inflated the playground improvement cost from $26,000 to $29,000, but recommended the loan specialist not be funded.

City's Response

Giese took issue with the

Census Information

Mayor Gil Weidenfeld has been asked by Congresswoman Gladys Noon Spellman to assist in publicizing the 1980 census to Greenbelt area residents.

Mayor Weidenfeld points out that an accurate count of Greenbelt residents will benefit the City in obtaining its fair share of Federal revenue sharing funds, Federal grant monies and other funding based on population.

Temporary census employment in clerical and field jobs is available—approximately 500 in Prince Georges County alone. Weidenfeld suggests that Greenbelt residents who are interested in working for the census send a resume or brief history of experience and qualifications to the office of Congresswoman Spellman at Room 308, Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

county's decision to allocate money only for resurfacing. He told council at its January 21 meeting: "the idea of utilizing Block Grant moneys for public improvement is for rehabilitation and not maintenance." He considers resurfacing to be a major maintenance item which the city already does within its capital improvement budget each year. The city had proposed to use the Block Grant funds to continue its established program of street reconstruction and widening.

Councilman Thomas X White suggested the city make known to the county the extent of road work that is undertaken outside of CDBG, that is, entirely with city funds. "ODA," he agreed with Giese, "is reneging on the NSA commitment by reducing the funding level."

If the city does not get the full amount for Ridge Road, then Giese would much prefer to re-allocate the $29,000 in playground improvement funds to road reconstruction. He feels the city's parks department can, if necessary, undertake the playground improvements through its own maintenance program.

He acknowledged that it would be hard to argue against dropping funds for the city's loan specialist. Councilman Charles Schwan agreed. Because the rehabilitation loan deferral program of Greenbelt Homes has been delayed, there are as yet no loans to be processed. "We would have a difficult time justifying that request," said Schwan.

"A year from now there may be a lot of loans and no loan processor," said a bemused Giese.

However, Giese and council think these funds should be re-allocated within the Greenbelt NSA program.

Council directed Giese to communicate its disappointment in the county's staff recommendations and to request the county council to allocate the full amount of $322,000, but at least to honor last year's commitment of $271,000.

Giese recommended that whatever money is available for sixth year funding should be used for road work. Council agreed unanimously to support that position.

GHI's Allocation

John Shanley, Program Planner for the county and responsible for coordinating the NSA program in Greenbelt, told the News Review that GHI will receive its entire sixth year NSA commitment. He said that a number of different sources are now being explored to fund the cost of the county's rehabilitation inspector. The county was not originally expected to share that responsibility with HUD and thus had no provision in the budget for this extra effort. Because of TRIM, the county cannot find the extra funds within its budget. Shanley acknowledged that a portion of the CDBG funds, allocated to GHI, might end up being used for this purpose, but said "that would only be as a last resort. It is the least desirable alternative."

GHI's deputy general manager, Ken Kopstein, told the News Review he is aware of this possibility but feels it is not the worst solution to a problem which must soon be resolved.

At council and manager's urging, Councilman Richard Castaldi presented the city's case before the Prince Georges Community Development Advisory Committee (CDAC) on Wednesday, January 23, in Upper Marlboro. City staff member Tom Hauenstein also attended. CDAC met to consider the county's application for sixth year CDBG funds from HUD.

Police Blotter

On February 16 at approximately 8:15 p.m., a baby girl estimated to be 3 to 5 days old was abandoned in a cardboard box on the doorstep of one of the apartments in Springhill Lake on Breezewood Terrace. The infant was wrapped in a yellow blanket and dressed in a two piece yellow shirt and pants outfit, with yellow booties.

She was transported to Prince Georges General Hospital emergency room where doctors determined she was in good health, weighed 7 lbs., 3 oz. and was 19 in. in length. The child's umbilical cord was still attached and cut in such a manner as to indicate that no medical personnel were present when the baby was born.

The infant has been placed under the care of the Department of Social Service, Protective Services. The case is presently under investigation. Anyone having knowledge as to the identity of the mother is requested to contact the Greenbelt City Police Department.

On February 16 at approximately 3:50 a.m. a Springhill Lake resident was approaching her apartment when she was assaulted and raped. The assailant then forced the victim at knifepoint to take him to her apartment, where he bound her and attempted to rape her roommate. Detective Ceccarelli has obtained warrants for a suspect charging him with kidnapping, first degree rape, first degree sex offense and assault with intent to rape. The suspect is presently detained at Virginia Beach, Virginia. Extradition proceedings have been initiated.

A juvenile has been charged with the breaking and entering that occurred in the University Square Apartments July 19. The juvenile was released to the custody of his parents pending a merits hearing.

On Feb. 13 a student at Eleanor Roosevelt High School was the victim of a robbery by force. He was accosted by four juveniles and his watch forcibly removed.

A breaking and entering occurred in the 9000 block of Breezewood Terrace sometime between February 11 and 13. Photographic equipment valued at over $700 was taken from the residence.

Officers Fred E. Murray and Thomas R. Justin have been promoted to the rank of Patrolman First Class.

Detective Corporal E. Brumley attended a two day seminar at the University of Maryland Law Enforcement Institute dealing with "New Techniques in Conducting Interviews." Seminar topics included psychological aspects of interviewing and the use of hypnosis as well as other techniques.

School safety patrol members from St. Hugh's, accompanied by Becky Brown, joined Pfc Charles Watkins on a tour of the FBI building in Washington, D.C.

As the result of a traffic stop for motor vehicle violations, Pfc Murray charged the operator with possession of narcotics.

On February 9 at approximately 12:16 a.m. two bullets were fired through the front window of Capitol Cadillac. The case is under investigation.

On February 11 a 19-year-old non-resident was arrested by Pfc Murray at Beltway Plaza. The individual became involved in a dispute, and when told to leave the premises he refused and became disorderly. He was charged with trespassing and disorderly conduct.
